Eighth Army Occupies Enfidaville

Monty's Infantry Storms Forward Repelling Nazi Counter-Attacks

LONDON, April 21. Allied Headquarters in North Africa: To-day's Allied Communiqué says that Enfidaville has been occupied by the Eighth Army which has repulsed four counter-attacks.

MONTY'S INFANTRY STORMS FORWARD

Reuter's special correspondent, Allied Headquarters, North Africa wires: The Eighth Army's assault on the Enfidaville sector of the German lines on the southern edge of the Tunisian mountains has been successfully concluded. All initial objectives including the key-town of Enfidaville have been captured and held.

Storming forward over an incredibly difficult ground, General Montgomery's infantry had scarcely time to dig themselves in before the Germans smashed back in two or three fierce counter-attacks early on Tuesday morning.

The contrast in German tactics is very apparent. Even at El Alamein, Mareth and Akarit the German Command had never counter-attacked with similar ferocity or frequency. It is clear that Rommel is not understanding the serious nature of the threat developed by the Eighth Army on the extreme left of his line—the gateway to the narrow coastal plain.

It is not known yet whether any street fighting developed in the capture of Enfidaville but it is certain that having beaten off the first counter-attacks the British infantry are now consolidating their newly won positions on the coastal sector.

SMIDIA CAPTURED
Infantry in the area north of Medjes El Bab yesterday captured a feature some three miles north of the town. This feature is known as Smidia and is a further acquisition in the line of the Eighth Army's advance.

The threat of Japanese massed raids, which has ceased abruptly, is still remains. Bombers and fighters are still massed at a point from which Allied bases can be attacked.—Reuter.

15 Raids On Kiska
WASHINGTON, April 21. Fifteen air raids were made on Kiska in the Aleutians on Monday, says the Navy Department to-night.—Reuter.

Eight Jap Ships Sunk
HONOLULU, April 21. Commander Dudley Morton's submarine "Wahoo" has returned from a second trip in Jap waters with the report that it sank eight large Japanese ships and two tankers and wrecked a large trawler in one week—a total of 37,000 tons. Combined with the sinkings on her first trip this makes a total of 69,000 tons destroyed by the "Wahoo".—Reuter.

REUTERS NOT UNDER GOVT CONTROL
The Associated Press of India, in the course of a statement says:—"Our attention has been drawn to a statement which appeared in the issue of 'Dawn' dated 17th inst. under a leader headed 'Dope in Dope Land' reading as follows:—"Reuters has since the last year been an acquired property of the British Government officiated by functionaries committed to Government Servants Conduct Rules."

This statement is totally incorrect. The facts are that Reuters is owned by the English National and Provincial Newspaper Press and is completely independent of Government control.

In order to maintain the Reuters traditions of independence, accuracy and impartiality in the presentation of news, a Reuters Trust was formed in October 1941.

The terms of the trust were, first, that Reuters shall at no time pass into the hands of any one interest, group, or faction.

Secondly, that its integrity, independence and freedom from bias shall at all times be fully preserved.

Thirdly, that its business shall be so administered that it shall supply an unbiased and reliable news service to the British dominions, colonial, foreign and other overseas newspapers and agencies and fourthly, that no effort shall be spared to expand, develop and adapt the business of Reuters in order to maintain in every event, its position as a leading world news agency.

The management of Reuters consists of a board of six Directors representing the Press Association and the News Paper Proprietors Association. It will be seen, therefore, that the statements which appeared in the leader of 'Dawn' are not only inaccurate but are without the slightest foundation in fact.—A. P.

R. A. F. Attack On Berlin

Stettin And Rostock Also Bombed: Attack On Shipping Off Belgian Coast

LONDON, April 21. It is officially announced that the R.A.F. heavily raided Stettin and Rostock. Simultaneously R.A.F. "Mosquitos" attacked Berlin. The attacks were effected by a large force of four-engined bombers. Thirty-two planes are missing from all operations. An air ministry "communiqué" announced: Last night "Lancasters," "Halifaxes" and "Stirlings" of bomber command made a very heavy attack on the Baltic port of Stettin. At the same time "Stirlings" heavily bombed the Port and Heinrich Heine airfield. While these two attacks were in progress, "Mosquitos" of bomber command attacked Berlin. Fighters and fighter-bombers attacked locomotives and barges in France, the Low Countries and Northwest Germany and shipping off the Belgian coast.

R. A. F. Attacks On German Trains

LONDON, April 21. British fighters last night made one of the largest offensives against German and German-controlled transport made by the fighter command, states the Air Ministry. They attacked trains and barges in various parts of France, Belgium, Holland and Germany and shipping off the Belgian coast. All the aircraft returned safely. One pilot attacked two trains in Germany and another shot up the whole length of a train.—Reuter.

ENEMY AIR ACTIVITY OVER LONDON

LONDON: An Air Ministry "communiqué" today says that at midnight last night there was a light enemy air activity over parts of London area. The bombs which were dropped caused little damage and small number of casualties.

HOW TOKYO WAS BOMBED

WASHINGTON, April 21. The War Department disclosed on Tuesday night that the planes which bombed Tokyo on April 18th, 1942 took off from the aircraft carrier "Hornet". The carrier with a loss of 29 men, AI forces to within 800 miles of Tokyo. The planes bombed not only military objectives in Tokyo but also armament works, dockyard, railway stations, oil refineries at Yokohama, Nagoya, Kobe and Osaka.

BR. SUBMARINE LOST

LONDON, April 21. It is officially announced that the British submarine "Thunderbolt" is presumed lost.

The "Thunderbolt" was formerly the "Chetiv" which sank in June 1939, while undergoing her trials off North Wales coast with a loss of 29 men. AI efforts to raise her failed as the world waited expectantly for the crew to be saved.

For two months she lay at the bottom of the bay. Then when the War broke out fresh efforts were made to salvage her and she was soon operating the Axis in the northern waters. In June 1941, it was announced that she had sunk an Italian U-boat and after a year of "highly successful" operations against the enemy she came home in May 1942.

TEN GANGSTERS KILLED

PESHAWAR, April 21. The North-West Frontier Province Government has issued the following communiqué:—"In the early hours of the morning on April 18 an armed gang of some 20 to 30 tribal marauders headed by Fatehjang, a notorious outlaw, entered the town of Sarai out."

CHURCHILL ON GLITTERING

LONDON, April 21. Prime Minister Churchill referred to the mistake of the glittering dictator Hitler not trying to invade Britain in 1940 in a speech made last October at a private London conference of coal miners and owners released to-day.

"I have often asked myself what would have happened if Hitler had put three-quarters of a million men on board all barges and boats and let them stream across and taken the chance of losing three-quarters of them," Mr. Churchill said. "There would have been terrible shambles in this country because we had hardly a weapon. We had not at that time 50 tanks whereas we now have ten thousand or twelve thousand. We had a couple of hundred fieldguns, some of them brought out of the museum. We had lost all our equipment at Dunkirk and in France and indeed we were spared an agonising trial."

PEARL HARBOR ECHO.

The other points from Mr. Churchill's speech were: Britain would have gone on fighting almost entirely without them. Another mistake was made by the Japanese when they attacked the United States at Pearl Harbor instead of attacking the British Empire alone when Britain was already busy with Italy and Germany in Europe. Hitler did try tentatively to invade England but the Royal Airforce crushed him.

General Smuts whose speech to the conference is also released, said that the Axis knew they had burned all boats with humanity. The Axis would fight with desperation and with all weapons. Perhaps with weapons not yet used "but which I feel will be used." The Axis would fight with a desperation such as the Allies had not seen before and they had therefore been conserved for the worst.—Reuter.

NAZI BID TO RETAIN HOLD ON CAUCASUS

Russians Beat Off All Counter-Attacks In Kuban Area

LONDON, April 21. Reuter's special correspondent in Moscow wires: Hitler's Generals who have massed an army of 1,000,000 men in the Kuban are launching one attack after another in their desperate attempt to retain a foothold in the Caucasus. Moscow "communiqué" reporting the fighting during the night said that the Kuban detachment of one Soviet unit fought fierce battles and towards the morning, all infantry attacks had been beaten off. The Germans suffering heavy losses from artillery and trench mortars. The ceaseless German counter-attacks in the Kuban are now all being beaten off. 302 NAZI PLANES DESTROYED The Moscow radio said to-day that during the week ending last Saturday, Soviet forces had destroyed 302 planes.—Reuter.

On Arakan Front SITUATION UNCHANGED

R. A. F. Attack On Jap Troops In Mayu Hills

NEW DELHI, April 21. The situation in the Arakan Front is unchanged, says an India Command Joint War "communiqué".

Elsewhere in Burma, there has been some increase in patrol activity by both sides. In a number of recent encounters our patrols in the Upper Chinthein country and the Kachin Leves in the Sunprabum area have inflicted considerable casualties on the enemy with negligible losses to themselves.

Many of the bombs fell among the village huts and some people were killed and injured. R.A.F. fighters engaged the raiders, probably destroyed two of them and damaged others. From the day's operations two of our aircraft are missing.—A. P.

"MISTAKE OF HADABAS CORPUS"

Application Rejected

ALAHABAD, April 21. The "Habeas corpus" application of Harishchandra, a student of the Benares University, that he be set at liberty under Section 491 of the Criminal Procedure Code, as his detention under Rule 16 of the Defence of India Act and Rule 26 of the Defence of India Rules was illegal, which was moved by Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru "amicus curiae" before full bench of the Allahabad High Court, was rejected to-day.

The High Court held that either Section 16 of the Defence of India Act or Section 26 of the Defence of India Rules did not nullify the jurisdiction accorded to this court under Section 491. There were numerous provisions of law which justified detention of persons, and the Defence of India Rules constituted but an addition to those provisions.

In the present case, the Court could not act as a court of appeal from the discretionary order passed by the Commissioner under Rule 26, and acquiesce in the grounds that led him to pass that order.—United Press.

Bombay, Wednesday. The "Turning Tide of War" was the subject of a talk at Green's Hotel this evening under the auspices of the Progressive Group.

The speaker said that two vital periods of the war were, firstly, the short interval between the fall of France and the end of the battle for Britain and secondly, the pioneer drive of the two German armies, one towards the Caucasus and the other to North Africa.

He considered the defeat of this pioneer movement as the turn of the tide. As regards the Far East, the battle of the Midway Island and the landing of the American troops, marked the turning of the tide.

Commonwealth Party For Indian Freedom

Release Congress Leaders And Resume Negotiations, Urges Sir Richard Ackland

(From A Special Correspondent) LONDON, April 21.

"I want that immediately Mr. Gandhi and other Congress leaders should be released and the unconditional resumption of negotiations," said Sir Richard Ackland, M.P., leader of the new party called the Commonwealth, in an interview.

Sir Richard added: "The Commonwealth Party will use all influence for the realisation of Indian independence in 1943. I suggest that leaders of the United Nations should intervene for breaking the deadlock and the Viceroy be more amiable in approach to the Indian problem. The present trend of opinion in this country feels that the Viceroy's political approach is wrong because, for one thing, he does not realise that great changes have taken place in Britain since he left years ago."

The Commonwealth Party is contesting one by-election on the India issue.

KARACHI, April 21. An appeal to the All-India Muslim League on the eve of their annual session at Delhi to take the initiative for the release of Congress leaders was made by local Communist Unity Squads at five street corner meetings held this evening.

The speakers laid emphasis on the Congress-League unity at this critical hour when the enemy is at our door and urged the formation of National Government at the Centre.

The speakers further appealed to their audiences, which included both Hindus and Muslims in large numbers, to unite.

President Camacho said that President Roosevelt's visit was not only a source of deep satisfaction for Mexico but an incontrovertible proof of "the progress attained by our two peoples in their desire to know and understand each other and to collaborate without interposition or interference."

Continuing President Camacho said "Mexico has not been obliged to alter in the slightest degree her domestic policy in order to find herself at the side of the United Nations which are fighting for civilization of the world and for the good of humanity."

FOOD PLANS

The definite announcement that the Government of Bombay will introduce rationing of principal food grains in the City with effect from May 2, will appreciably relieve public anxiety about the food problem. For rationing implies that Government under take to provide minimum supplies in the City at reasonable prices and it may be fairly assumed that Government take this step because they are convinced of the possibility of the province to supply with such imports they can arrange for justifying the undertaking without prejudice to the minimum requirements of any other part of the province. This assumption is strengthened by the last week's broadcast talk from Delhi by Major-General Wood, Additional Secretary in the Food Department of the Government of India, setting out the arrangements made by the Central Government for the ensuring and controlling of food supplies during the next twelve months. He explained what has been called a seven-point programme which may be briefly indicated as follows: Firstly, the Food Department of the Government of India undertakes the responsibility to procure surplus food grains and make a proper distribution between the provinces and States that need them. The second point is the provision of adequate machinery to ensure that the surpluses are sold at prices related to what has been paid for them and to secure that the goods go into consumption and not into the black markets or hoarding. The third is the division of supplies for twelve months ahead. The fourth is to set up an extensive organization for this purchasing and movement activity. The fifth relates to the policy to use trade methods, trade machinery and the channels of trade to the maximum extent. The sixth refers to measures for public co-operation and the last item of the programme is to see that the aggregate of all stocks at any time in their hands serves as a weapon to be used to establish and maintain an equilibrium of supplies and prices all over the country. While explaining this plan Major-General Wood announced that the Government of India intended to buy food grains to the value of Rs. 100 crores during the next twelve months. The plan looks ambitious but it is nothing quite new. It is almost a compendium of the main resolutions passed at the recent Food Conference held at Delhi. But it is satisfactory to note that they have been accepted by Government substantially. Particularly welcome is the undertaking by the Central Government of the responsibility to purchase surpluses in the surplus areas and transfer them to deficit areas in the country, to co-ordinate all the activities implied in the scheme, and to enlist full co-operation of the public. But it is not quite clear whether the supplies relied upon by Government will be fully available to them and what arrangements they have made for imports. In any case indigenous production must be stimulated to its highest possible capacity. This is a huge problem and involves all-round increase in almost all foodstuffs and not merely food grains. The supply of vegetables and milk has yet received the attention it deserves. Vegetables are important because they are essential for health and can be grown more easily than grains. Milk is indispensable for children but is getting scarce and costly.

The food problem as a whole can be solved satisfactorily only if there is maximum co-operation between Government, local bodies, popular leaders and the agriculturists. Such co-operation is not much in evidence now, certainly not in those provinces which are administered by a constitutionally irresponsible Governor advised by equally irresponsible members of the bureaucracy. Nor is full co-operation possible when hundreds of influential leaders and workers are in jail.

Offensive Resumed

It is gratifying to learn that General Montgomery has not waited long to launch the final offensive against Rommel. Anxious notes of caution and warning had led one to expect a long period of comparative lull. The special announcement from General Eisenhower's headquarters has, therefore, come as an agreeable surprise and is very welcome. Correspondents emphasize the great strength of Rommel's defences as also the fact that they are manned by his toughest and best. This is, of course, true enough and it must be assumed that the battle now joined would be the hardest, most bitter and most costly of the whole campaign and that almost every single yard of ground would be ferociously contested until, at any rate, the British reach the dominating hills ten miles ahead. But the British have the advantage of a superior army in every respect, quantitatively and qualitatively; they are particularly strong in artillery and practically supreme in the air. The result of the battle may, therefore, be looked forward to with confidence. It is even possible that if all goes well even though slowly, Rommel's forces on the Eighth Army front may collapse within the next ten days out of sheer exhaustion and demoralisation. But these ten days are certainly going to be very grim.

FRANKLY SPEAKING

The Russian Front

Not much has been happening of late on the Russian front. But Germans are steadily increasing their supplies to the northern and southern sectors. They are trying once more to beleague Leningrad if not to take it. Some observers have suggested that the basic motive is to prevent the Finns from suing for a separate peace. But whatever the object and however exaggerated their own claims, the point is that they are mounting a counter-offensive in the Leningrad area. They are similarly active in the Kuban and are reported to be rushing strong forces from the Crimea and elsewhere to defend their bridgehead on the Caucasus and to widen it, too. It is clear that the Germans are concentrating their strength for a double blow as soon as the weather permits and into this blow they are going to put all their might.

Arakan Front

The Delhi authorities feel aggrieved over criticisms of the British campaign in Arakan and especially of their publicity methods. Here is an instance justifying those criticisms. For the last so many days communications from the India Command have been assuring the world that there has been no change in the land situation. But, according to a Military Observer's report, a further withdrawal has been effected, precisely during this "no change" period. What have the authorities gained by not reporting it beyond adding to the disappointment which the withdrawal would inevitably cause?

Wishful Thinking

With more candour than fairness Mr. John Coatsman said in a speech in London that India's sterling resources, now accumulating in London, "would largely be used after the war in procuring such goods from us as India wanted and as we would be able to supply. This may be better than indefinite payment in paper money but why should not India procure in the cheapest market the goods she wants?"

MILITARY TRAINING FOR MATRICULATES

Bombay University Scheme Reaching Completion

BOMBAY, Wednesday. A new department, known as the Department of Military Studies, will be opened in Bombay University in July next. It will be housed in the South Wing of the University and will be conducted both in Bombay and in the provinces. It appears that the services of a senior, retired military officer of experience, recommended by H. E. the Commander-in-Chief, are being obtained for the post of Director in charge of the Department. He will be assisted by selected officers of the University Training Corps and others. It seems certain that the Department will confer diplomas on the award of certificates of diplomas will depend on candidates securing army certificates of "B" examinations, it is essential that the students taking this course must have been members of the University Training Corps and must have at least passed the Matriculation or an equivalent examination, preferably Intermediate or a Statutory University. To begin with, about twenty students will be taken up for this two years' course. The main outlines of the scheme, with the estimate of cost of about Rs. 30,000, were first submitted by a Syndicate Committee of the Bombay University appointed to consider such a proposal of Dr. B. G. Vad in 1940. In February 1940, the Senate resolved on a proposal from Dr. B. G. Vad to institute a Department of Military Studies at the earliest possible date and requested the Syndicate and the Academic Council to take the necessary steps to implement the resolution. In pursuance of this resolution, the Syndicate appointed a Committee to study the scheme and to make recommendations. A sub-committee was therefore appointed to draft a scheme for the Department. The Syndicate Committee approved of the scheme and the Academic Council also approved it. The scheme was approved by the Senate at its meeting held on July 20 and by the Syndicate at its meeting held on July 27, 1940. While the full details of the scheme, as it finally emerges may be worked out only after the appointment of and in consultation with the Director, it is likely that the main outlines, as they were first conceived and recorded, will be adhered to.

College Re-Examination

Owing to the disturbances of the last year most of the colleges have not been working regularly for considerable time and hence many students have suffered in their studies. Taking this into consideration some colleges are having re-examinations for their students in June next. It is hoped that the colleges will do the same which will not only make up for the time lost but will also result in reducing the financial burden on poor parents if their sons and wards pass in their regular examinations.

India In World Currency Union

(By K. T. SHAH)

III*

This Plan will be managed by a Board, appointed by the Government of the participating States. It is not stated in what proportion each State would be entitled to nominate to the Board in view of the vital importance of the functions proposed to be entrusted to the Board, it is of the utmost importance to know how will the membership be recruited. Countries like India which are not yet apprehensions about their place on the Board, unless the principles on which such appointments are to be made, and the respective proportions of membership assigned to the participants, are defined in advance.

Functions Of The Board

The chief function of the Board will be to fix the value of "BAN-COR" in terms of each local currency, and the quota of each participating State in the management of the Union, having the right to enjoy its credit facility. It is not stated as to how the amount of credit allowed to each country will be regulated. Will it be in proportion to each country's foreign trade, or national income, or some other factor? Countries which are not yet developed enough to have a high level of foreign trade may suffer notwithstanding their potentiality, which, to be developed fully, will need capital, or Ban-COR facilities. In the measure here too, India, from her past experience may well feel nervous as to how these quotas will be determined; and in what form will each quota have to be provided. Will it have to be in gold only? Or will the sterling securities India holds be accepted at a fixed rate of conversion of sterling into gold? The essence of these functions, if the tabled sum-ary is correctly understood, will necessitate a delegation of sovereign authority to the Board, which there is no indication Britain will agree to. Without a degree of such sovereign power, the Board cannot attain the objectives for which it is set up.

Bancor—A Financial Disarmament Or Exchange Distrust?

According to the author of the Plan "The Clearing Union" might become the pivot of the future economic Government of the world. The arrangement proposed can be described as a measure of financial disarmament. The analogy is more ominous than accurate. For, as in the old squabbles about disarmament, unless all agree simultaneously to disarm, and appoint some authority to see that disarmament does take place, it will only lead to a new war.

If the plan is to work at all, all the United as well as enemy Nations will have to become members of this International Clearing House, or Currency Union. Special conditions would, very likely, have to be imposed upon the present day enemy countries, so as to assure the continued functioning of the system, and guard against its being sabotaged by the unilateral action of any such country.

In essence, the British scheme postulates the separate, independent, unqualified, sovereignty of each participant, which will not be conducive to its smooth and successful working. There is, apparently, nothing to compel any community to join the Union; and much less to prevent its withdrawal even after joining. This will put a needless and undesirable premium on narrow national self-seeking.

Bancor—A trader's Design

The scheme, moreover, appears designed primarily for the benefit of countries, like England, which are unable to produce all that they consume themselves and vice versa depend upon foreign trade for their very existence. Countries on the other hand, which aim at and can achieve national self-sufficiency, like Russia, the U. S. China, or India, might find their working a needless twist on their own productive organisation. Its basic and dominating notion is production for exchange, and not for use, as any rational system of world economy would require. Basing itself on that conception, trade, the off-spring of production for exchange, must needs concentrate on differences in comparative money costs, as the sole motive force of international exchanges and not on the more essential foundation of trade in regional surpluses or specialities. These ideas, if allowed to govern the new currency organisation, will not augur happily for the new world order. (To Be Continued)

If Mr. Jinnah Be Viceroy!

Mr. N. P. Bhargava writes:—So suggests the "New Statesman and Nation" of London:—"For five years at least, if Mr. Jinnah sat in the Viceroy's Lodge, the case for cutting India in two might seem, to him less urgent than it does to-day."

This view of the paper is quite correct. If Mr. Jinnah occupies the Gadi-whom would he select as his Prime Minister, Political Adviser, Home Minister and other members of the Cabinet, and whom, as his Private Secretary? Will any one of your State readers give us the list? It will be so interesting!

TÊTE-A-TÊTE

WITHOUT COMMENT—

General Montgomery's greeting to Fuehrer Adolf Hitler on the latter's birthday celebration.

Reading the account of the Bombay Sheriff's protest meeting we recalled the recent speeches of Field Marshal Smuts, Mr. Drakeford of Australia and Lord Bennett and then suddenly our thoughts went into the realm of fantasy propounding and trying to answer the rather well-worn question: "If Christ came to the British Empire....?"

Here are the results in essentially general and broad outlines:—(1) In Britain He would, after being duly greeted by every great Christian from the Archbishop of Canterbury to Mr. Winston Churchill as "Our Lord", be placed under the trusteeship of a Board composed of Messrs. Amery and Oliver Stanley presided over by "the King's First Minister."

(2) In Australia, should He, that is to say, manage to get in, He would most probably be closely watched even if not actually arrested for detention as a dangerously "cunning Asiatic."

(3) From Canada He would be summarily expelled for His inability to conform to many provisions of the immigration laws.

(4) In South Africa He would be segregated in well-defined non-European areas and would be forbidden not only to buy property in Durban, etc.—which would be material so far as He was concerned—but also to use "European" trains, trams buses, lifts and hotels.

You see, Christ was an Asiatic.

* * * * *

(5) And if He came to India: Well, it's a matter of particularly delicate speculation. The 400 millions would, of course, welcome Him as Jesus of Nazareth and would be glad to see Him. But that is not our trouble. We may be travelling in the realm of fantasy, but our instinct of self-protection is all there. We, too, might fall into the hands of Sir Reginald Maxwell and Sir Richard Tottenham.

* * * * *

(6) Finally, He might, moved by the additional impulse of nostalgia, visit Palestine. He would be received with open arms—provided He answered the following two questions: for instance, to the complete satisfaction of the High Commissioner and Doctor Weizman:—

* * * * *

(7) Are you or are you not a European Jew? and

(8) Do you or do you not accept wholeheartedly and without any reservations Balfour's Jewish National Home extended further into Smuts' Jewish Commonwealth of Palestine?

* * * * *

You see, what would happen if Christ came to the British Empire or for that matter—to let us say—to Benoit's "World Christian Civilization"? He would immediately be forced to quit but with that famous and most beautiful of all sayings: "Father forgive them, for they know not what they are doing."

But what a world! Benoit's world of Christian civilization!
